As I took my first few nevous steps on to the playground, i was confronted by a roaring cacophony of shouts, screams and raucous laughter. despite the balmy conditions, my nees, which were starting to resemble jelly, began to shake; I clutched desprately to my lunchbox, wishing it were mum. Nearby - a ragged looking group of giants, with spiky Nails and cruel eyes, turnd to face me, like a hungry pack of hyenas. my eyes darted left and right, looking pledingly at others for help, but it was hopeless. The hyenas marched towards me, licking their lips and poping their bubble-gum? as I took a few trembling steps backwards. Mercifully, before the head of the Pack had opened her snarling mouth, a shrill bell sounded and they fled. Gulping down air with sighs of relief, I shufled off towards my classroom.
